IN AN ENVIRONMENT OF INTENSE NATIONAL SECURITY, THE COMPLEXITY OF DOING BUSINESS GLOBALLY HAS NEVER BEEN GREATER.

Increased global threats and tensions have heightened the focus on U.S. national security. As a result, a complex set of U.S. rules and requirements can affect a wide range of operations, including imports, exports and investment activity. Global businesses, universities and research and professional organizations of all sizes turn to Dorsey to help them understand and comply with a myriad of U.S. laws, policies and procedures aimed at protecting national security, including the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR), the Export Administration Regulations (EAR) and multiple economic sanctions regulations.

Our National Security Law practice is led by experienced lawyers with government national security and prosecutorial backgrounds. We know the regulatory landscape and the challenge it presents to global business. We can assist any organization facing these challenges and provide guidance and direction in assessing the risks and opportunities. Our experienced team is ready to offer advice and counsel on the specific challenges your organization must overcome to do business domestically and expand globally.

AT THE CENTER OF WHAT'S NEXT

The unprecedented market expansion is driving up costs to lease or purchase space. This could be an opportunity for your company to either benefit from elevated prices if you own assets, or create a strategy to avoid cost increases if you lease space.

Our team provides PNDC members complimentary value estimates of their buildings (for owners) or lease abstracts (for leasers) to inform strategic business decisions.

Contact us to receive a lease abstract or value estimate. Our insight can position your company for what's next.
